GOOD MORNING

There is a story often told of a preacher who visited a man from church who had not attended any Church activities or services for a number of weeks. The preacher knocked on the man's door and was invited into the home. The man who had not been attending, gestured to the preacher to take a seat next to him by the fire. They set there in silence not saying a single word to each other. After a few brief moments of silence watching the fire crackle the preacher moved to the edge of his seat, grabbed the fireplace poker, and began to move a few coals around. He isolated one coal by itself and moved it out onto the fireplace hearth where the coal initially continued to glow a bright orange. However, after a moment or two, the coal began to dim fainter and fainter. Eventually the coal ceased to glow at all. The coal remained on the hearth as the two men still had not spoken. After a moment or two more the preacher took the poker and returned the cold isolated coal back to the company of the brightly glowing embers. The secluded coal now surrounded by the others quickly returned to a bright glowing ember providing heat and light to these two men. The preacher rose from his chair, put on his coat and hat, and prepared to exit the man's home. Just as the preacher reached for the doorknob to let himself out, the wayward man spoke the first words of the evening's encounter, "nice sermon, preacher, I'll see you Sunday."

Even though no words were spoken, the message from the coal was clear. The man's spiritual life would soon be like the dark coal, if it were not already, without the company of others to keep it burning. He needed the church and the church need him. This concept is the heart of biblical fellowship. In Hebrew 10:24-25 we are instructed, "And let us consider how we may spur one another on toward love and good deeds, not giving up meeting together, as some are in the habit of doing, but encouraging one another." To put it very simply, we need one another. So even in this pandemic time, let us continue to find ways to meet with one another and spur each other on to love and good works.

In Him,

Luke Bower
