GOOD MORNING

In the youth class we have been talking about the culture we find ourselves in and how we should interact with it. This last week we started talking about technology and how it effects the world around us. As good as it is, technology also open us up to whole set of problems we hadn't had to deal with before. With all this information at our fingertips, one of the biggest problems technology has presented us with the question of what should we believe?. I heard someone say the other day that we have moved from the information age to the disinformation age. When I was going through school you had to redo a paper if you cited Wikipedia, a free online encyclopedia written and maintained by a community of volunteers through open collaboration. Now it seems that if enough people say something is true, society accepts it whether it is true or not.

As followers of Christ, we have to be careful we don't fall for the misinformation the world is putting out there. I am reminded of a story found in the book of Acts. When Paul and Silas went to Berea the people there were eager to hear what they were preaching, but they did not just blindly accept their words. We read in Acts 17:11, "they received the message with great eagerness and examined the Scriptures every day to see if what Paul said was true." We live in world saturated with information and people trying to get you to believe what they are saying. A lot of that information is false and it is not always apparent. As followers of Christ, we need to remember that there is only one source when it comes to absolute truth, the word of God. It doesn't matter how many people say it is true or how widely it is accepted by society, if something is contrary to the word of God, it is a lie. In a world full of so many lies, let us be like the Jews in Berea, eager to hear, but daily searching God's word to see what is true.
